

Hello folks,

Welcome and I hope this finds you bearing up well. I'm having a surprisingly creative and enjoyable second wave. All these amazing creative and healing folks are going online, offering the kinds of meetings that I'd have loved to have done but distances and money would have made impossible. Now they're happening online. I'm doing some writing courses and viola lessons myself and offering some courses that you might like to take.

I'm also delighted to find out that Campbell Ceilidh has been nominated for Community Project of the Year at the Na Trad Awards!

Hot on the heels of the US general election, the Trad music world crowns this years' valiant efforts of individuals, organisations and the industry. Despite the gruelling conditions, it's pretty great to pay attention to the good stuff going on.

If you've experienced it, please consider voting for Campbell's Ceilidh as Community Project of the Year (category 5). Voting closes Sunday 15th November at midnight. And check out the other acts and their amazing music.

Campbell's Ceilidh is a beautiful thing and it makes us feel good every Sunday evening, which feels needed right now. Thank you for coming and making it happen.

Mairi xx

Campbell and Helen Chadwick

Mairi and Helen bring their skills as crossover singers, composers and theatre makers into the wee boxes we find ourselves in. Tight though they are, these parameters can provide a surprising number of creative possibilities.

Using techniques drawn from InterPlay and Helen's song theatre background, we'll explore the possibilities and transform our screens into stages and platforms for joyful solo and ensemble play.

Maximum 30 participants. No inactive viewers...

Drop in welcome (book one or more classes):

Jan 13 / 20 / 27

Feb 3 / 17 / 24

Wednesdays 11am-12.30pm

Closed series (book for all six sessions):

March 3 / 10 / 17 / 24 / 31

April 7.

Wednesdays 11am-12.30pm

£20 per session or £120 for the second series. To book, email Mairi at mairi@mairicampbell.scot

Waking up White

You're invited to join InterPlay leaders and Racial Justice Educators Jennifer Denning and Katie Hyman for this Waking Up White online course. Live music from Mairi Campbell.

Maximum of 18 places... course will run with a minimum of 6.

Dates:

Nov 28th, 2020

Dec 5th, 2020

Dec 19th, 2020

Feb 6th, 2021

6 2-hour sessions

Saturdays 4-6pm

Course fee: £180

This class is based on the book Waking Up White and Finding Myself in the Story of Race, by Debbie Irving.

We will explore and research our ability to play and stretch through our personal and societal discomfort. We will use InterPlay forms to tell our stories and move through the discomfort, facing it with compassion and creativity.

This group is a closed group and we're asking participants to attend all six sessions.

What to bring: come prepared to move your body, make sounds and quite possibly words or marks on paper.
