

Hi folks,

It's been a full few weeks. Thank you to everyone who came along to the recent fiddle retreat on Lismore and helped to make it so heartwarming and memorable.

The year's flying in, which means it's nearly time again for the Edinburgh Festival Fringe. No theatre shows this year, but I'm looking forward to doing three solo concerts as part of it all. For anyone in Edinburgh in August, there's an uplifting concert, with possibly a fair bit of audience participation, waiting for you at the Acoustic Music Centre...

The last few weeks

Song at Kilcreggan House was great, and I'm happy to say that Helen Chadwick and I are heading back in August to teach at the Unfolding Song weekend. Highly recommend for anyone keen to sing.

There's also been the Lismore song camp with Sanne Storm and the stepdancing course with Alison Carlyle. It's been great to get back to doing courses after a couple of years' focusing on creating the shows. It's the contact with folks who are so into sound that I love. The participants remind me of the power of music and I like to create the conditions for it to flourish. Lismore is the perfect backdrop to the work. Quiet, deep and nourishing. I'm planning on six courses for 2020.

Funny how life goes. Cesar, my friend from Mexico, came to visit these past two weeks. It's been a whirlwind of activity. Poor guy's been dragged round all the courses I've been teaching, meeting loads of singers and stepdancers, and giving us a few Mexican songs in the mix. A lot of fun to reconnect. His warm charisma and Latin je ne sais quoi has been enjoyed by everyone! Thank you, Cesar. This pic was shot on Lismore on the same spot the Pulse album pic was taken.

Recently we all went to hear Ada play and sing in Glasgow with Beth Malcolm. Gorgeous gig and so uplifting to hear strong and lyrical music from two young

Ada and proud Mum

“Mairi Campbell transcends the role of performer and encompasses music itself; it just pours out of her like a love letter to the mysticism of traditional music”

Eric Rothe Edinburgh Guide *****

“Campbell’s irresistible heart-harped love-letter to a song and her life is both melodic and a tribally primal skein of disparate threads – it rocks with the ages past and present, salves with cathartic balm.”

Edinburgh Reporter *****

Cheerio for now,

Mairi, Kate (producer) and Marianne (communications)
