

🔊 Auld Lang Syne Fringe premieres in 8 days 💙

Robert Burns is said to have first heard Auld Lang Syne sung by an old man in a pub in Dumfries in 1795. He added three verses to the original, then when he sent the song to his publisher Thompson in Edinburgh, they recommended he change the tune to the one we know today.

But the first tune hasn't been forgotten... definitely not. In fact, I'll be singing it during Edinburgh. I'd love to see you there.

It's also in the new album (more on that below) and recently got a play recently on Radio 2.

New album out now exciting mix of acoustic songs and kickass tracks that all feature in the show.

Producer and musician Dave Gray and I started writing the tracks for this latest album about two years ago. They underscore the action, and alongside Maria Macdonald's lighting plan, the stage looks and sounds amazing. Kath Burlinson is a great director. This is our fifth collaboration and I feel so lucky to be working with this master of the stage.

One of the tracks 'Auld Mysteries' features Ailie Robertsons bowed harp playing. Wow, haud onto yer seat! Just sayin.

You can buy the new CD on my website and at Blackwells and Coda in Edinburgh, and they will be available at the Scottish Storytelling Centre throughout the Fringe.

So, wish me luck and hope you enjoy it. Auld Lang Syne is a funny and potent mix of informative, entertaining and other worldly!

More about the show

The show is co-directed by Kath Burlinson, founder of the Authentic Artist Collective, and supported by Made in Scotland, a curated showcase of Scotland based work. This year is the 10th anniversary showcase making it even sweeter to be part of it all.

Key dates

We have a preview on 2 August and we'll be playing most days from 3 to 27 August.

We have BSL shows on 10 and 24 August. More information on these particular shows in this video from Edinburgh Festival Fringe.

Live transmission

We are also doing a live transmission of the show via Facebook on 15 August. We will announce where to find it as soon as this is confirmed'.

Touring

For those not able to get to Edinburgh this August, we are taking the show to Macrobert in Stirling on Thursday 11 October (tickets here) and to Eden Court in

Sex and the City alert

The shoes I'm wearing for the show are bought from the shop 239 Portobello High Street. They're brogues with a touch of Harris Tweed.

Love them and they're so comfy... not sure they'd make the grade for Sex and the City but hey...I'm in the driving seat and they're as good as shoes get as far as I'm concerned.

Also rehung the pendulum, which featured in Pulse and will feature in the new show. Thanks to Gordon at Turners Blacksmiths in Penicuik.
