

Hello folks,

Welcome back to the monthly. I'm back from hols and hopefully heading back to something approaching normality... with my first live gig since lockdown last weekend. It was a 'secret' outdoor gig in central Edinburgh organised by Douglas Robertson's Sound House. Karine Polwart and Sean Shibe were also there and the music just poured out of them. So great to hear and be part of!

More info below about Campbell's Ceilidh, a new online string teaching school, an October Intensive workshop and ... a new single 'Come to your senses'.

Inside Out Musician

I'm part of a new online string teaching school called InsideOut Musician. We're still building the website and setting it up but I'm recruiting class participants. If you'd like to join my InterPlay 6-week course or my fiddle circle (all levels except absolute beginners), please email me at mairi@mairicampbell.scot and I'll put you on an early bird list. We're a small class of 10 and the cost is £120 for a 6-week course starting in November 4th (£20 per session).

The fiddle class will support your playing wherever you are. Areas covered depends on class participants and what they need but may include: developing more easeful technique; learning by ear; developing your memory; playing with a swing; harmonising. Each participant prepares one tune by ear that they are prepared to bring to share with the class.

'Interplay' Untensive workshop

Find your flow. Ride that wave.

A weekend immersion in InterPlay, a system that offers easy entry into five core ways of expression: movement, voice, language, stillness and social connection.

You'll discover a tool kit that supports teaching, performing, community building, health and well-being. This method also enriches personal artistic practice.

Cost: £120. Book your place through Mairi's online shop. Or email Mairi at mairi@mairicampbell.scot to book your place or for more information.

Ellen's filmshoot

Thank you to everyone who has contributed to (youngest daughter) Ellen Francis's film LUPA. Your help has been invaluable. The three days of shooting were fascinating and I think Ellen has found her fit. Considering this was her first directing job, she was amazing. Calm, kind and clear. I'm so proud. Here are some photos, taken on Sea Cliffe beach near North Berwick.

New single: Come to your senses. Out 18th September

Promo video: new single 'Come to your senses' out on 18th September 2020

Music by Mairi Campbell and Davy Clincart

Art work: Tamsin Haggis

Davy Clincart and I made a track recently up at his studio on Lismore. It was inspired by the words that Laura Newbury wrote from Angels and 'other' energies in response to 'How do we heal the world?'. 'Come to your senses', was the answer.

All are invited to our Zoom launch party for the new single on Friday 18th September at 7pm. Meet Davy and me through this informal online ceilidh event and share the joy!
